

Who can become Member of the Irish Network Against Racism (INAR)?

Members of INAR can be all types of civil society organisations (groups, trade unions, charitable organisations, specialist bodies, grassroots organisations, etc.) which conduct anti-racism related work at local, regional, national or European level. They must subscribe to the mission and vision of the Network, of an equal, just, inclusive Irish society free from racism. As the national collective voice for building solidarity among groups challenging racism, INAR will fight all forms of racism by providing analysis and tools to empower those who experience racism to take action.

The Network’s mission is to foster a collective civil society voice and to influence decision-making in Ireland, in the European Union and beyond in order to:

- Redress the negative consequences racism;
- Promote diversity and create the conditions for equal participation in a community
- Ensure that anti-racism, equality and diversity are mainstreamed across all sectors in Ireland and in the EU policies.

INAR MEMBERSHIP PROTOCOL

We are Members of the Irish Network Against Racism in Ireland (INAR). INAR is a national network of civil society groups who are committed to combating racism and all related forms of discrimination in every sphere of life. As a civil-society network, we are committed to finding common strategies and policy positions for combating racism, for finding ways of complementing each other's work, and for offering cross-community and cross-sectoral support and solidarity.

Membership of INAR is open to all civil society organisations committed to equality, diversity and combating racism in Ireland. Membership of INAR may also be extended to individuals whose expertise will benefit the network.

Through our networks, and using EU and global anti-racist initiatives and the monitoring of racist incidents in Ireland, our mission is to attain full equality in Ireland, for everyone, regardless of their ethnic or religious background or skin colour, and to stand in solidarity with anyone who faces discrimination based on their identity (gender, including Transgender, religion, disability, age, economic, marital or family status, and sexual orientation) in their struggle to participate and be included as full equal citizens in society.

In recognising that INAR Ireland's core work is in the independent monitoring of racist incidents through the network-owned iReport.ie recording system, we commit fully to using, supporting and promoting this vital independent tool.

The principal decision-making body of INAR Ireland, is the Network Meeting, which occurs at least 6 times per year.

INAR is part of the European Network Against Racism (ENAR), based in Brussels. ENAR is an EU-wide network of NGOs in EU Member States, as well as Iceland. ENAR combats racism, racial discrimination, xenophobia and related intolerance, and promotes equality of treatment between European Union citizens and all minority ethnic groups.

As a network comprising a range of organisations, some with funding, some without any, we endeavour to act in solidarity when representing the Irish Network at a European level. Where some organisations are able to pay the ENAR fee and some are not, we commit to the principle of equal representation and solidarity, representing the entire network, regardless of ability to pay.

As network members, we believe Racism should be explicitly recognised as a crime, and we commit to working together, and with others to bring forward positive legislative change to help make racism a thing of the past in Ireland.

As INAR Members, we are committed to:

1. Anti-racism and anti-discrimination practices
2. Being a part of anti-racist movements/ initiatives/ organisations in society
3. Making positive contributions to the network, it's membership and activities
4. Supporting, endorsing, promoting and feeding into the independent monitoring system www.iReport.ie via our website, social media and other communications.
