

SIPHIWE MOYO

Sphiwe Moyo is a trained community worker who predominantly works on refugee integration. She is currently working with Empower and serves on the board of UNHCR.

She is a trained anti-racism trainer for community organisations and companies.

HOW HAS THE STAND PROJECT HELPED YOU?

"The STAND Project has offered me an opportunity to learn about how racism goes beyond personal experiences but is also seen in institutions. The training has also helped me meet people who have the same goals as me."

WHAT DO YOU LOOK FORWARD TO WORKING ON AS A STAND TRAINER?

"I look forward to helping people understand the different aspects of racism. Additionally, I am excited to help other organisations to design policies that include everyone. Together, we can have an Ireland that values everyone!"

The STAND Project is supported by
Rethink Ireland & IHREC